EDITORIAL BRIEFS.

Tennessee jurors are models of their kind.

Taxation, and cholera are the pests of Egypt.

Polk, of Tennessee, "goes up" for twenty years.

Jeff Davis is still angry about that unpleasantness.

Gov. Pattison will attend the encampment at Williamsport.

Could not some one persuade the Pennsylvania legislators to strike for a 15 per cent. advance on their ten dollars a day?

"Tom Thumb" weighed nine pounds at his birth, and his sister, who weighed nine and a half pounds, grew to weigh more than two hundred.

Senator Pendleton has just sold to Senator Vest his interest in a large block of Kansas City real estate, which was purchased in common by the two Senators some years ago.

A fund of $1,000 has already been raised in Bloomington, Ill., for a monument to Litta, and it is proposed to open subscription lists in all cities and towns where the lamented prima donna ever sang.

Eight oil-paintings of the late Senator B. H. Hill are on exhibition in Atlanta, Ga., and several more are to be sent in, in competition for the Legislature's offered prize of $1,000 for the best portrait.

Congressman Morrison, of Illinois, is believed to be willing to accept the Democratic nomination for Governor of that State, provided the Republicans do not make ex-Senator Oglesby their candidate.

Rev. Joseph Cook, despite the opposition he is now encountering from the newspaper press, is the most erudite scholar, entertaining orator and profound thinker now living in the United States and perhaps in the world.

The situation becomes more encouraging for the striking operators. The less prominent telegraph companies are arbitrating and if the Western Union don't come to time their immense business will pass into other hands.

The London Times says that the iron trade is more active because of the increased demand from the United States, owing to the new tariff. Numerous shipments have been made in order to take advantage of the new scale of duties.

States that will hold elections this year are Kentucky, Iowa, Ohio, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Mississippi and Minnesota. Kentucky, Ohio and Iowa elect in October, the others being November States.

Gen. Butler says the skins of the dead paupers were allowed to be tanned into leather by the Tewksbury almshouse officials. That is nothing to the way the Governor and Democratic Legislature of Pennsylvania are skinning the people out of ten dollars per day for each member by extending the extra session.

Lessons Learned from the Strike.

Senator Morgan, of Alabama, imagined that he had fathomed deep into the perplexing question of the cause of labor troubles when he attributed strikes to the operotion of the tariff, protective duties, in his opinion, tending to over-production. But such a cause is not suggested by the history of strikes in this or other counties. The Philadelphia North American calls the Senator's attention to the fact that we tried practical free trade in this country upwards of thirty years, during which time production was not marked. But during that period there occurred several financial crises and many strikes, not on so grand a scale as strikes nowadays, but quite as disturbing and obstructive to business. If it could be shown that over-production and labor troubles were always coincident, that would go some way to justify the assignment. But it is well enough known that they are not coincident, either here or elsewhere.

The fact is that the country is never wholly free from the unrest which takes form at last in strikes. The desire for change is urgent at all times, and the more urgent as men enter into combinations for offensive and defensive purposes. The strike of the telegraphers is perhaps one of the most widely extended demonstrations ever made by labor in this country. Yet there can hardly be said to be any overproduction in that line, unless it can be shown that we have more telegraphic facilities than we need, or that there is an excess of operative force. Supposing both to be shown, how does the policy of protection affect telegraphy? The business is not affected by tariff regulations, of course. The strike demonstrates that there is some cause quite independent of the tariff policy of the country operating to beget disturbances in the industrial world.

Senator Morgan thinks matters move along smoothly enough in other lands, and that disturbances in the working world are rather peculiar to this country. He is probably in error here. This country has not yet seen anything like the distemper which has from time to time prevailed in freetrade England, and which but a few years ago prevailed in Germany. The latter country has only lately become a protective tariff country. Its tariff regulations are quite as rigid as our own. But Germany seems to be quiet enough under the policy of protection France has been a high tariff country for many years. If, as Senator Morgan seems to think, protection favors over-production and overproduction leads to labor troubles, how does he reconcile these facts with the theory that all the world, save this quarter, moves along smoothly enough? If his theory is sound, there ought to be unceasing troubles in France. Yet he finds that country moving along smoothly.

The theory advanced by Senator Morgan is not by any means new, but is founded on superficial observation. Like causes produce like effects throughout every domain. And if our strikes are due to protection, then protection everywhere ought to produce the same distempers in the industrial world. We have the Senator's word that protection in France and Germany does not produce labor troubles. Clearly, then, we shall have to look further before we formulate a reason why the industrial world is anywhere afflicted with seasons of unrest. Perhaps we may find, after diligent search, that where the people are freest they are most subject to these periods of unrest. And we may find that the extravagant habits of a people have a great deal more to do with such troubles than Senator Morgan has yet come to know. Strikes seem to follow the tides of prosperity very closely. A really indigent population cannot afford the luxury of a strike.

The Jury System.

The Scranton Republican discusses the jury system as follows: There is generally a howl against the jury system whenever a verdict is rendered contrary to the verdict of popular passion. The reformers, philosophers, and others, who are anxious to inaugurate the millennium, immediately address their pens to paper and work themselves into a fever heat in the effort to prove that the jury system is a failure, and that justice demands some other plan by which law judgments may be worked out. The reviews and the magazines, that think only once a month, turn on their heavy artillery, and argue with much profundity that the jury system, having been tried and found wanting, has proved a failure and must be abolished. These fluent theorists have not, however, advanced any proposition by which the jury could be successfully superseded, and we do not think, however ingeniously they may see fit to discuss the matter, that they can invent a piece of machinery more simple, better suited to the work, or one that could command public confidence so thoroughly as the jury system. It is the bulwark of the individual citizen's rights, and however much he may feel called upon to criticise it at times he would much rather place his liberties in its keeping than in that of a bench of judges. It has been noticed that, with all their faults, juries are not liable to err any oftener than judges, and that exceptions are more frequently taken to the actions of the court than those of the jury box in the applications that are made for new trials. The jury system has its faults, but while it ought to be reformed it must not be abolished. We believe much of the complaint made against it arises from the fact that stupidity appears to be the prime requisite in a juror. He is not expected to have any more opinions on a great question than a clam, and if he cannot read or write he is all the more acceptable. It is easy to see that a jury thus chosen is more apt to be swayed by the rhetoric of a ranting lawyer than by the cool facts of the case, and instead of being guided by honest opinion drawn from careful study of details, he becomes the prey of such prejudices as an adroit attorney may see fit to stir up in his heart. The jury system must go on, but it ought to be reformed sufficiently to make room for intelligence in the jury-box, and to admit men as jurors who can clearly understand the instructions of the court, and tell the difference between the sworn statement of a witness and the reckless assertion of an attorney. Of course cases frequently occur where men with fixed and passionate prejudices approach the jury box. Such methods should always be rigidly excluded, but this ought not to exclude the man who admits having read the particulars of a pending case and formed an opinion that might easily be altered by learning the facts. A man sees a statement in the newspapers that one citizen killed another in cold blood on the highway. He immediately forms an opinion that the cold-blooded murderer should hang, but if on the trial it is shown that the murdered man was the aggressor, that he struck the first blow and attempted to rob the person who slew him in self-defense, the opinion of the fair-minded juror would speedily undergo a change, and he would be able to render a verdict in accordance with the facts. A good deal of time is squandered in search of jurors who know nothing, and when they are found their verdicts invariably do more than anything else to bring the jury system into contempt. The man who cannot read is often as well qualified to serve as his more learned neighbor, but this should not disqualify the man who can read. These inequalities should be set straight and there would be less reason for fault finding over the jury system. Those who are anxious to live in a country where there are no juries should emigrate to Russia.

Sending telegraph messages by mail is like telephoning a man and then going around and telling him what you want.

Almost Beneath Contempt.

The New York Sun, a journal which is almost beneath contempt, endeavors again and again to blacken the memory of the late President Garfield. Some time ago it endeavored to prove in the most ineffectual manner possible that his election was consummated by fraud. This despicable journal, not content with always complaining because Hayes was seated in preference to Tilden, is striving vainly and against fate to impair the respect in which Garfield is held. Such a course should bring upon it the condemnation of every person with any adequate conception of the proprieties and delicacies of life. The Centre Democrat, of this place, a journal which was once a comparatively respectable publication, as newspapers of the Democratic faith go, but is rapidly degenerating, in an editorial last week endorses the disgraceful allegations of the Sun by giving its readers a summary of them.

The Watchman of last week also repeats and approvingly comments upon the libelous story.

In such a connection the views of an independent journal are of interest and the Pittsburgh Dispatch, which is such a paper, takes occasion to say in the most terse and pointed manner possible that—

The publication was an outrage. There was nothing new in it, and it is doubtful whether Dorsey had anything to do with it.

The series of charges rest upon the unsupported assertions of persons not credible.

There is not a scrap of testimony from first to last.

Concerning some of the statements we have no knowledge, but there are certain accusations that we do know are falsehoods. We name them.

The story about Garfield at Chicago is a fabrication—bosh—not true—should not be talked of—there is no foundation for it.

The narrative about the August conference we know to be false in important particulars.

The MacVeagh interview with Conkling we know to be woven of fiction and colored with lies.

The Stanley Matthews slander is a self-evident—lie.

It was quite in the expected order of things that the dispatch chronicling the attempt of Captain Webb to swim the Niagara rapids also chronicled his death. Of all the foolhardy adventures of which this age seems to be prolific, none have risen to the elevation of this. Captain Webb had swam twenty miles down the Thames, which was well enough, though of no practical moment. He had made the passage of the Straits of Dover on a second trial—another utterly useless demonstration of his endurance as a swimmer. Having done these difficult things, he was rash enough to dare the rapids of Niagara, losing his life, and leaving nothing to show for it behind him.

Secretary Folger has issued a circular to the custom house officials instructing them that whiskies manufactured in the United States and sent abroad for the purpose of being so brought back to be treated in the same manner as original importations. This decision will defeat an ingenious arrangement of whiskey men, by which they hoped to secure free storage for their goods in the bonded warehouses of the United States until such time as they could profitably be placed on the market.

A citizen of Boston, whom the Gazette of that city does not name but loosely describes as a "well known gentleman," has made three wills during the last twenty years, appointing three different sets of executors—nine in all. One after another every one of the nine has in one way or another proved himself unworthy of an important trust and the testator now finds it necessary to select a fourth set of executors.

Langtry is daring the dangers of the ocean wave.

Positive Protection.

The Harrisburg Telegraph in an editorial makes the following statement which is of peculiar force and interest in Centre county:

As England is situated they can manufacture iron at say $30 per ton. The same iron made in this country will cost with our higher wages $40 per ton. Without protection, the foreign makers can sell in our markets at ten dollars less than we can, less the cost of freight and exchange. To protect our manufacture we levy an import duty or tariff of ten dollars per ton on foreign iron. That is to say, every cargo of foreign iron brought to this country must stop at the custom house and pay to the Government $10 per ton before unloading. This is a tariff for protection. Suppose the United States consumes 100,000 tons. The competition, the cost of freight, &c., prevents England from furnishing over 10,000 tons, from which we derive a revenue of $100,000. Ninety thousand tons are made here, and the money is distributed in wages to hundreds of our citizens, while the profit is enough to prevent capital from being drawn out of it and put into other investments. This is tariff for protection, and that which has caused the annual value of our manufactures to increase more then twice in the past twenty years. Now, suppose the Democrats succeed in adopting their revenue reform and pass a tariff for revenue with incidental protection. The tariff on iron is reduced to $5 per ton. England can sell at $35, and unless our manufacturers can reduce their prices to meet it, they will be driven out of our own markets, and they cannot so reduce their prices without reducing the wages of the workmen engaged in making it. Thus England gets the bulk of the iron trade, and will furnish 75,000 tons out of the 100,000 tons used, and leave 25,000 to be made by our own people at a loss, unless the wages of the workmen are reduced. Now common sense teaches us that, as we have to care for our own house, we should prefer positive protection to incidental; for every other business is interested in the prosperity of the iron trade as that is in every other.

The Iowa State Leader, in a recent number, heads its report of Bright's Birmingham address "Hon. John Bright Makes a Ringing Free Trade Speech." Why, bless your heart, of course he does. Why shouldn't he try to talk money into the pockets of the manufacturers of England, and especially of Birmingham? What a remarkably foolish English manufacturer he would be, if he did not favor free English trade in the United States. Note how clearly he betrays his purpose in his closing paragraph about "the inalienable right of every American citizen to spend his money in the world's cheapest market"—England of course. But not even the clever and plausible Leader can persuade Americans that they exist only for the purpose of delighting Mr. John Bright by buying cheap English goods made by cheap labor, and leaving our own capital and labor unemployed. Mr. John Bright is our competitor. What he desires us to do about the subject matter of the competition is a very good theory for us to avoid.

The Hartford Courant gives an interview with a Connecticut Democrat who took part in the last Presidential campaign. He charges Mr. Tilden with insuring the defeat of General Hancock by trading off the localities which are under his control, and he verifies his statements by the returns from the Tilden counties. In the latter General Hancock fell behind Tilden's vote, while in adjacent counties his vote ran somewhat ahead of the party strength. The person who gives the information claims to have evidence to substantiate his charges.

Poetry.

A DAY IN JUNE.

ADAPTED FROM "A SUMMER RAMBLE."

One bright and beautiful summer morn,
Whose cloudless sky, and balmy southern breeze
Made every thing in nature fresh and fair—
The perfumed air, the blossoms, birds and trees—
All these conspired alike to tempt us forth
To take a drive through fragrant forest glades
In search of pleasure and enjoyment there,
For all is peace amid its quiet shades.

At once we yielded to temptation's voice,
And started, free of care, upon our way,
Resolved in nature's haunts, romantic, wild,
To while away the hours of this one day.

Our road lies through a scene most picturesque
And even grand are some points in the way;
For high and rugged, at one side, the rocks
Rise far above us in a wall of grey.
A few rude dwellings in this spot are found,
The homes of workmen, laborers in the mills;
And, staring at us as we pass along,
Are faces, peering o'er the window sills.

At last we reach a lovely, quiet spot
Beside a lake, whose placid waters clear
Tempt us to sail its sparkling surface o'er.
Here, seated on an old moss-covered log,
Beneath the branches waving to and fro,
We gaze with admiration on the scene,
The waving trees, the high and sparkling lake,
While over all the sun shines down serene.

Too soon we find the stated time arrived
When we must bid farewell to this wild spot,
And, turning homeward, must again resume
The cares and duties for a while forgot.
Reluctantly we leave this sylvan dell,
Proceeding slowly on our homeward way
Along a road where flickering shadows fall,
And where bright flowers their lovely tints display.

WHAT THEY SAID IN OLDEN TIMES.

[The wits in all ages have tried their hands upon the poor wives, as if they were at the bottom of all the trouble in this world as well as in the next. Coleridge says:]

Sly Beelzebub took all occasions
To try Job's constancy and patience;
He took his honors, took his health,
He took his children, took his wealth;
His camels, horses, asses, cows—
Still the sly devil did not take his spouse.

But heaven, that brings out good from evil,
And likes to disappoint the devil,
Had predetermined to restore
Two-fold of all Job had before;
His children, camels, asses, cows—
Short-sighted devil, not to take his spouse.

Another poet has made this version of the same job:

The devil engaged with Job's patience to battle.
Tooth and nail strove to worry him out of his life;
He robb'd him of children, slaves, houses and cattle
But, mark me, he ne'er thought of taking his wife.

But Heaven at length Job's forbearence reward
At length double wealth, double honor arrives;
He doubles his children, slaves, houses and herds,
But we don't hear a word of a couple of wives.

—Only a cucumber,
Green and so fair,
Only a cucumber,
Early and rare.
Only a small boy,
Alone with the fruit,
Only a golden-haired
Little galoot.
Only ma's darling,
In agony lies;
Only an angel
Shot up to the skies.

Our Story Teller.

The Old Will.

"Little Blossom, you make it so hard for me to say good-bye to you."

"When?'

The innocent, surprised, inquiring face—renunciating was indeed, difficult for John Burrows. He touched a dimple in her cheek, and then a curl of her hair, as he might have touched flowers on a grave, perhaps.

She shook back the silly ripples impatiently.

"When, John?"

He looked at her for a moment without a smile, pretty as she was.

"Nelly, sit down here for a moment."

They sat down on the pretty crimson couch before the fire. Seeing trouble in his face she put her hand in his and he smoothed out the little rose-leaf member upon his broad palm, more than ever confident, as he looked at it, that he was right.

"Nelly, you know I love you."

"Yes," with a blush, for he had never said it before.

"And I am very sorry."

"Why?" after a pause of bewilderment.

"Because you are a delicate little flower, needing care and nursing to keep your bloom bright; and I am going to a hard rough life, among privations, fever and malaria, which will try even my powerful consitution, and where you must not go."

"You are going to the Far West?"

"Yes. My mother must have a home in her old age. She is strong now, but time is telling on her. You know all that she has been to me?"

"Yes, she has been a good mother. But you shall take me too, John."

She won her way into his arms against his will.

"You will take me, too?"

"No. Did I not tell you that you made it so hard for me to say good-bye to you?"

"John what could I do without you?"

He took the little caressing hand down from his face.

"Don't make me weak, Nelly. Do you think that it is nothing to me to leave my little violet—the only woman I ever loved—for a hard, cold life and unceasing toil. I cannot marry for ten years yet, Nelly."

"And then I shall be thirty years old."

"Yes, married, and with little children, seeing, at last, that your old lover, John Burrows, was right."

He rose to his feet.

"John!" in terror.

"Yes I am going, Nelly. Little one—you look so much like a woman now, with your steadfast eyes—hear me: I did not foresee that you would love me—that I should love you. You were a little school girl when I saved you from drowning that summer, and your satchel of books floated away down the river and was lost. I could not help loving you; but did I think till to-night that you cared so much for me, Nelly. But child you will forget me."

"Never."

He went on.

"Nelly, I shall hunger for you day and night, more and more, as time goes on and I get older, lonelier, more weary. But I shall never hope to see you again. Now give me your hand."

She gave him both. He raised them to his lips, but before she could speak again he was gone.

Shivering violently she went to the fire and stood there trying to warm herself. She understood it all now—his strangely elaborate arrangements for a trip to New York. He had known that he was not coming back when she had begged him to bring her his photograph from the great metropolis, but was going on—on—into the dim distance. This is why he had not promised.

It was getting late—she was so cold—and she had better go to bed. She would not go into the parlor to bid her father and aunt and Gregory good night; so she crept silently up to her own room. There the very weight of grief upon her lulled her to sleep.

But when she awoke her grief sprang upon her like some hidden monster who had lain wait for her all night. Her misery terrified her. Why should she not die? Why should she ever rise from that bed?

But when they called her, she sprang up hastily, dressed and went down stairs, and they were too busy talking to notice that she did not know what she was doing. But, by and by, when her brother reached for some more coffee, and observed "John Burrows and his mother went to New York on the first train this morning," she tried to rise unconcernedly from the table, and fell in a dead faint on the carpet among them.

When Nellie came too, she was undressed and in bed, and Aunt Mary was darning stockings at the foot.

"Oh, let me get up, Aunt Mary! I don't want to lie here!"

"Now, Nelly, be reasonable! You are sick."

"Oh, Aunt Mary, I'm not."

"Nelly, if you will lie still to-day I'll let you have that old box of curiosities in my room to look over. Will you?"

"I don't know."

Aunt Mary went for them. Nelly shut her eyes and let the wave in all its bitterness surge over her once; when Mrs. Golding came back, bringing in a box of old mahogany, black and glossy with time.

"There!" setting it on the bed.

With a wintry little smile of thanks she lifted the cover. The old mahogany box contained strange things. Pictures on wood and ivory, illuminated manuscripts, webs of strong lace, antique ornaments, ancient embroideries, great packages of old letters, sealed flasks of unfamiliar perfume, ancient brooches of red gold, finger rings of clumsy-set gems tied together with a golden heart, the silver hilt of a sword, and lastly, a tiny octagon portrait of an old man, done in chalk upon a kind of vellum and enclosed in a frame of tarnished brass.

"Who is this that is so ugly, Aunt Mary?"

"That, they say, is my great grandfather, Nelly."

"What is it painted on—this queer stuff?"

"Well, it is a kind of leather, I believe. They used it to write on in olden times."

"He is uncommonly ugly, isn't he?" said Nelly, wearily.

As she spoke the little case fell apart in her hands. A yellow, folded paper was revealed. She opened it and saw that it was written upon.

"Why, bless my soul, what have you there?" exclaimed Miss Golding, rising up in a strange alarm.

She snatched it from Nelly's hand.

"It can't be the will?" she cried.

Nelly looked on in dumb surprise. Aunt Mary read a few words and then rushed away in wild agitation to the library where her father was sitting. Nelly could hear them talking, the two; then her brother came, then the old house-keeper was called from the dining room; and so much confused talking she never heard before. By and by, they all waited on her in a body.

"Nelly," said her father, sitting down upon the foot of the bed, "you are an heiress."

"This is old Grandfather Golding's will!" exclaimed Aunt Mary, flourishing the bit of paper.

"It seems that he was very eccentric," Gregory condescended to explain. "He was very rich and had some hard sons and grandsons who promised to be harder and he fell out with the whole set, who were waiting for him to die. He declared that no money of his should encourage the young people's excesses; a little poverty would help the family, and the fourth generation would appreciate his money, and probably make good use of it. When he died no will could be found; and though there was a famous struggle for property, it went into the hands of trustees, through the oath of the lawyer who drew up the will; and there it has been, descending from one person to another, and accumulating in value, until you and I, Nelly, are as rich as Crœsus."

"How, Gregory?"

"Ain't we the fourth generation? Father was the only child, we are his only children; all the back folks are dead and it slides down to us on greased wires. Hurrah for Grandfather Golding!"

"Is this true, father?"

"Yes my dear. The property is chiefly in Leeds, England. The housekeeper who came over last summer, you know, happens to know all about it. It is in safe hands, and our claim is indisputable.

What did Nelly do? The little goose! Instead of flying off in thoughts of a carriage, and dresses of cloth of gold, and a trip to Europe, she buried her face in the pillows, and murmured under her breath "Oh, John! Oh, dear, dear John!"

And it was no castle in the air. Three months proved that Nellie Golding was the mistress of gold, untold, almost. And then a little note went to Kansas saying:

Dear John—I am waiting for you with a fortune. Will you come for me now? "NELLY."

And he came instantly; and though some might have sneered at his readiness, the heart of the little wife was always at peace.

She knew that John Burrows loved her truly. Grandfather Golding's money built up a commodious western town, paved the streets, raised rows of shops, erected rows of dwellings-houses, founded banks, libraries and churches; and Nellie finally lived "out west." But she had no opportunities of seeing pioneer life, and she said, "John was right, I should have died in a year had I lived here in poverty."

No Trouble in the Choir.

Brooklyn Eagle.

"I think you treated us very unkindly in saying that we had a fight in our choir!" murmured the contralto, taking the chair the religious editor placed for her and straightening her hat. "You hurt the feelings of everybody and I don't see any good of it."

"But didn't you have a fight?" protested the religious editor. "Did the tenor say the soprano didn't know no more about music than a logarithm does about the doctrine of infant baptism?"

"I know that," conceded the contralto. "And he was right. She don't. But she is a cross-grained old maid, and the sooner we get rid of her the better."

"And didn't the base take the soprano's side and hit the tenor on the nose?" continued the religious editor.

"I know he did," replied the contralto. "And he was all on the wrong. The tenor is perfectly lovely, and the soprano got mad because he was to sing a duett with me. But I don't see why you wanted to pitch into him. Why don't you say the soprana had been flirting with the baritone for six months, in spite of his being a married man? What did you want to put it all on the tenor for?"

"I didn't know anything about that," retorted the religious editor. "Somebody told me that the tenor took you to the church picnic and that all the row grew out of the fact that the soprano told his wife."

"So she did, the meddling old maid. It was none of her business. He didn't take her, and he isn't likely to. We never had any trouble in that choir until she got to poking her nose into everybody's business. Say, I wish you would come out and state that the paper was mistaken in its report, about the difficulty."

"Of course I will if there is any truth in it," responded the religious editor. "Is the difficulty all over?"

"It will be as soon as the tenor gets his hands on the organist. He has been giving his mouth a holiday and saying that the tenor wants to get the soprano out so he can get another one in who used to sing in the same church up in the country. As soon as I heard of that I told his wife she had better keep a lookout for her husband. She told him about it and he said there wasn't a word of truth in it, and now she is keeping a watch on him and now he can't go home from choir practice with me until it blows over. I don't see why the tenor's wife should be jealous of him."

"So he's going to thump the organist is he?" inquired the religious editor.

"If he can catch him before he gets over his mad, he will. I wish you would say that all the differences in the choir have been settled and that the congregation are anxious to have a new soprano. Will you do that for me?"

"Certainly," smiled the religious editor. "Didn't I hear something about the alto leaving the choir?"

"No such luck as that!" sighed the contralto. "She's as much of a fixture as the contribution box. She and the bald-headed basso are at thick as the notes in a long run, but I have put a spoke in her wheel by telling his wife that he held her hand all day when we were practicing the Easter music. She won't bother me and the tenor any more until she gets out of that scrape. I wish you would not criticise that basso's voice. He can't sing any more than a lobster, and when he puts me out the leader looks hard at me and says I will have to do better if I am going to sing in that choir. I'd like to see him try to put me out! My husband would wring his neck for him!"

"So you're married, too, are you, ?" murmured the religious editor.

"Of course I am," replied the contralto. "You needn't say anything about that in your old paper, because I never allude to my husband unless he's around. Now I want you to write a nice article about us and say that of all the church choirs in Brooklyn there's not one so perfectly harmonious and devoted to its duties as ours. Will you that's a good man?"

And the religious editor hadn't the heart to refuse her.

Love in the Depot.

Detroit Free Press.

A woman arrived here the other forenoon from the East with seven children in tow, and at almost the same hour a man reached the same depot from the North with five offspring of various sizes and ages. She was a widow and he a widower, and the children had not been whipped more than once around before there was a sort of mutual sympathy that begot admiration and then friendship. One of the widow's boys offered one of the widower's girls a bite of his fried cake, which was accepted in the spirit tendered, and a 10-year old belonging to the man made up to the 2-year old belonging to the woman and soon secured the privilege of wiping its nose and combing its hair. Presently the widower made bold to inquire:

"Madam, am I wrong in believing that you are a widow?"

"I have been a widow fourteen months to-day," she answered.

"Great Scots! but it's just fourteen months to-day since my Hanner died! Which way be you going?"

"To Illanoy."

"That's just where I am going too. Did you promise your husband never to marry again?"

"No."

"And I didn't promise my wife, either. Fact is, I believe I shall unite as soon as I find some good woman."

"And my children need a father's care," she sighed as she pulled little John Henry off the window sill and bumped him into a seat.

The man got up and walked around the waiting room and took a closer look at the children. Then he returned and said:

"I suppose you've got a few hundred dollars, belong to some church, can wash and bake and mend, and are of a mild and forgiving disposition?"

"Yes, that's me."

"Well, I'm kinder religious, even-tempered and am worth about $2,000. I'm sort o' stuck on you. There's something about your eyes that reminds me of Hanner."

"And you look like Alonzo around the mouth," she sighed.

Then he bent over and whispered something about Chicago and getting married, and she nodded her head. He gathered his children under his wing, took them into a corner, and solemnly and impressively observed:

"Children, I'm going to get married to that woman over there and give you a new mother. If any of you is going to kick and boo-hoo about it, begin now, so than I can tune ye down before the train goes. Henry, you are the oldest. Are you going to declare you'll run away or commit suicide? Let me know right now, for this is a good cool place to prance ye around with a shingle."

Henry said he guessed it would be all right, and the rest of the crowd seemed to agree, and ten minutes later the widower and widow sat holding hands and trying to eat peanuts, and the twelve children were biting and pulling hair and kicking to see who should have a seat on the steam-heater.

"This is kinder the work of Heaven!" chuckled the widower as he hitched a little nearer.

"You, bet, love!" she replied, as she shucked another peanut with her teeth.

The Life of Man.

From the Philadelphia Press.

Man, born of woman, is of few days and no teeth. And, indeed it would be money in his pocket some times if he had less of either. As for his days, he wasteth one-third of them, and as for his teeth, he has convulsions when he cuts them, and as the last one comes through, lo, the dentist is twisting the first one out, and the last end of that man's jaw is worse than the first, being full of porcelain and a roof plate built to hold blackberry seeds.

Stone bruises line his pathway to manhood; his father boxes his ears at home, the big boys cuff him in the play ground, and the teacher whips him in the school room. He buyeth Northwestern at 110, when he hath sold short at 96. If he wear sackcloth and blue jeans men say "He is a tramp," and if he goeth forth shaven and clad in purple and fine linen all the people cry, "Shoot the dude!"

He carryeth insurance for twenty-five years, until he hath paid thrice over for all his goods, and then he letteth his policy lapse one day, and that same night fire destroyeth his store. He buildeth him a house in Jersey, and his first born is devoured by mosquitoes; he pitcheth his tent in New York, and stamps devour his substance. He moveth to Kansas, and a cyclone carryeth his house away over into Missouri, while a prairie fire and ten million acres of grasshoppers fight for his crop. He settleth himself in Kentucky, and is shot the next day by a gentleman, a Colonel and a statesman, "because, sah, he did not like, sah." Verily, there is no rest for the sole of his foot, and if he had it to do over again he would not be born at all, "for the day of death is better than the day of one's birth."

ROBERT J. BURDETTE.

The Czar of Russia once met by accident Col. Galetsin in a state of inebriety. "Look here, sir," said the Czar, "what would you do if you met a Colonel of the Guard in the condition in which I find you?" The Colonel drew himself up, gave the military salute and replied with great gravity: "I would not condescend to say a word to the brute." His wit saved him his commission.

A VETERAN BENEFACTOR.

HIS PAST LIFE, PRESENT PLANS, AND WHAT HE HAS TO SAY UPON A SUBJECT THAT ASTONISHED HIM.

New York Times.

Nearly forty years ago a young man, of unusual endowments, began to mould public opinion upon a subject of vital importance. Like all pioneers, his early efforts were unsuccessful, but his ability and the value of his work soon won public confidence, and to-day there is not a village or hamlet in the country that has not been influenced by Dr. Dio Lewis. When, therefore, it was learned yesterday that he contemplated the establishment of a large magazine in this city, the fact was deemed so important that a representative of this paper was commissioned to see him and ascertain the truth of the rumor.

Dr. Dio Lewis is a gentleman of sixty years and two hundred pounds, with snow-white hair and beard, but probably the most perfect picture of health and vigor in the metropolis. He is a living exponent of his teachings, and notwithstanding the amount of work he has already done, he promises still greater activity for years to come. He received the interviewer most courteously, and in reply to a question said:

"It is true I have come to New York to establish a monthly magazine. I have come here for the same reason that I went to Boston 25 years ago. Then Boston was the best platform in the country from which to speak of education. New York has now become most hospitable to progressive thoughts, and especially so to movements on behalf of physical training.

"I have reason to know the great and abiding interest of the American people in this subject. They have come to realize that the future of our country pivots upon our physical vitality, and especially upon the vigor of our women. My new magazine will bear the title 'Dio Lewis's Monthly,' and be devoted to sanitary and social science. I hope through its pages to inaugurate a new departure in hygiene."

"Have you not written several books on the subject?"

"Yes, nine volumes, and some of them, like 'Our Girls,' published by the Harpers, have had an enormous circulation, but the best work of my life I shall give the world in the new magazine. Forty years of skirmishing ought to conclude with ten years of organized warfare."

"Doctor, what is the occasion of this new interest in health questions?"

"It has come through suffering, which seems the only road to self knowledge. The stomach, heart, kidneys or liver fall into trouble, happiness is gone, and then people give attention to their health."

"Which of these organs is most frequently the victim of our errors?" asked the reporter.

"Within the last few years diseases of the kidneys have greatly multiplied. When I was engaged in practice, thirty-five and forty years ago, serious disease of the kidneys was rare; but now distressingly frequent and fatal."

"To what do you attribute this great increase of kidney troubles?"

"To the use of stimulating drinks, adulterated food and irregular habits of life."

"Doctor, have you any confidence in the remedy of which we hear so much now-a-days, 'Warner's Safe Cure?'"

"I believe in the ounce of prevention, rather than in a ton of cure."

"But have you noticed the remarkable testimonials of Warner's remedies?"

"I have, and confess that they have puzzled and astonished me. The commendations of proprietary medicines usually come from unknown persons residing in back counties. But I see in our most reputable newspapers the warmest praise of Warner's Safe Cure from college professors, respectable physicians, and other persons of high intelligence and character. To thrust such testimony aside may be professional, but it is unmanly. No physician can forget that valuable additions to our Materia Medica have sprung from just such sources. I was so impressed with this cloud of witnesses that I purchased some bottles of Warner's Safe Cure at a neighboring drug store, and analyzed one of them to see if it contained anything poisonous. Then I took three of the prescribed doses at once and found there was nothing injurious in it. I do not hesitate to say that if I found my kidneys in serious trouble, I should use this remedy, because of the hopelessness of all ordinary treatment, and because when a hundred intelligent and reputable persons unite in the statement that a certain remedy has cured them of a grave malady, I should choose to believe that they speak the truth."

"But as you may know, my great interest in life lies in prevention. For forty years I have labored in this field. One of the phases of my work in New England was the establishment of the ladies' seminary at Lexington, Mass. My aim was to illustrate the possibilities in the physical training of girls during their school life. This institution became, before I left it, the largest and most successful seminary for young women owned and managed by one person in our country. I sat down to dinner every day with a family of two hundred persons. The remarkable results of this muscle training among girls were given in my paper published in the North American Review of December, 1882.

"Besides, I established the normal institute for physical training in Boston, and for ten years was its president and manager. Dr. Walter Channing, Dr. Thomas Hoskins, Professor Leonard and others were among its teachers, and more than four hundred persons took its diploma and went out into all parts of the land to teach the new school of gymnastics. And now the years left to me I propose to devote to the magazine which I have come here to establish. It will be the largest periodical ever devoted to this field of literature, and will present the hundred and one questions of hygiene with the simplicity of a child's talk. To this end all so called learning will be subordinated. The magazine will be more or less illustrated, and will strive to reach a high place in the confidence and hearts of the people. In a few weeks our first number will appear, and we shall fondly hope for it a hearty welcome."

The facts above narrated are indeed most important. It is gratifying to know that the life long experiences of a gentleman who stands without a peer in successfully demonstrating the principles of hygiene; whose heart has always been in sympathy with the afflicted, and whose brain has ever been active in planning for their relief, are to be given to the public through the pages of a magazine. And it is specially significant and proof positive of rare merit that a proprietary medicine, even with such high standing as Warner's Safe Cure is known to have, should be endorsed and recommended by a man so able, so reputable and of such national renown as Dr. Dio Lewis.

We lately heard of a house-maid who, about to leave a family unexpectedly, and urged to give a reason for it, simply said: "I can't stay, the young ladies speak such bad grammar."

Three persons have sued a Rochester paper for libel, claiming $100,000 in each case. Almost any editor can put his hand in his pocket and fork over $300,000; but he won't do it. He prefers to let law take its course and cut down the sum to six cents. Editors are just that mean.

Two young fellows stood in front of a bill board the other night intensely perusing the announcement of the Boston Ideal Opera Company. Finally one remarked, "What is the 'Boston Ideal' anyhow?" The other looked at him half contemptuously for a moment and replied in a deprecatory tone: "Don't you know what the Boston Ideal is? Why, you ninny, it's baked beans."

AN OLD TALE.

Starved—starved—starved!
Yet queen of the feast was she,
And a liveried servant's ebony hands
Proffered the fruit of tropical lands
To her on bended knee;
Yet a horrible hunger night and day
Was gnawing her life and her strength away.

Dying—dying of thirst!
Tho' at her lightest will
The costliest wines like waters flowed,
Foamed in the crystal, and gleamed and glowed,
But left her thirstier still;
And she felt that the fruit and the wine were crust,
For the starved with hunger and choked with thirst.

Many a suitor wooed,
For she was passing fair
Fortunes were proffered, and jewels brought,
And challenges given, and duels fought,
But what did my lady care?
For she wasted her love, and she gave her heart
To one who haughtily stood apart.

She thirsted for one fond look—
She starved for a kiss denied;
But he cared no more for her smile or blush
Than the glacier cares for the red-rose bush;
And she pined away and died.
And true hearts mourned her many a year,
While the man she died for shed not a tear.
'Tis ever the way of the foolish fair
To die for the one who does not care.

A Partial Compromise.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—It is said here on the best authority that the American rapid company and the striking telegraphists have agreed upon a compromise and the men have been ordered to work to-morrow. The basis of agreement between the brotherhood of telegraphers and the American Rapid telegraph company is an advance of ten per cent. on salaries, extra pay for all work done for night work, and extra for all Sunday work.

PITTSBURG, July 25.—The following dispatch has been received by Secretary Hughes, of the brotherhood of telegraphers:

NEW YORK, July 25.—Satisfactory arrangements having been made between the brotherhood of telegraphers of the United States and Canada and the American Rapid telegraph company, all members working for that company will resume work tomorrow morning, July 26.

[Signed.] JOHN CAMPBELL.

The striking operators at a meeting this afternoon resolved unanimously to telegraph to Chairman O'Connor, of the executive board, requesting him immediately to order out operators employed by the associated press.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 25.—The American Rapid telegraph office was reopened to-night for business. The strikers are resuming their places according to the terms of settlement made by the brotherhood and the company. Thirteen operators are on duty to night in the Western Union office and are taking care not only of all local business, but helping other offices out. As nobody struck at the Mutual Union office the telegraph service here has about resumed its customary condition.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The 5 o'clock bulletin issued by the Western Union company showed there was considerable delay on many of the principal wires, owing to the unusual pressure of business during the day, but it was expected that the night force would be able to clean up the work before morning. The greatest delay was in reaching points in the south, Chattanoga and New Orleans being four hours behind. The western wires also crowded, principally those to Chicago, St. Louis and Buffalo.

The Liquor Question in Ohio.

CLEVELAND, July 24.—The Ohio Liquor Dealers' Association have called a meeting at Toledo, August 9, to organize for an aggressive political campaign next fall. Invitations have been extended to all local associations to send delegates.

COLUMBUS, July 24.—The State convention to secure the adoption of the proposed prohibition amendment to the Constitution was attended by five hundred delegates. Dr. J. M. Walden was temporary chairman and Mills Gardner, ex-Congressman, permanent chairman. Their speeches pointed to an organization in which all can vote their respective party State ticket and concentrate on the amendment.

Superior Excellence.

The reasons for Peruna's superior excellence in all diseases, and its modus operandi, are fully explained in Dr. Hartman's lecture reported in his book on the "Ills of Life, and How to Cure them," from page 1 to page 10, though the whole book should be read and studied to get the full value of this par excellent remedy. These books can be had at all the drug stores gratis.

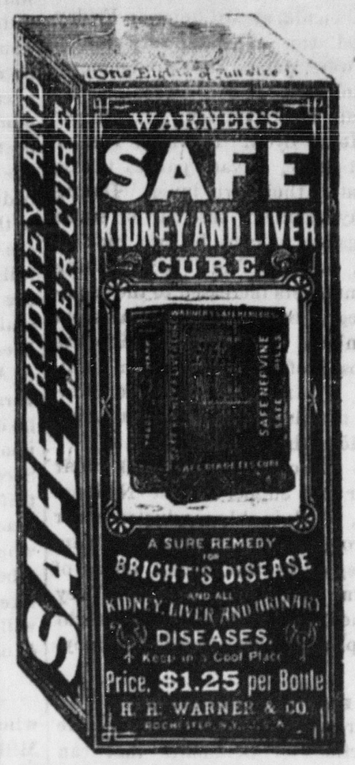

Peruna is the best immediate Expectorant (Cough Medicine) that has yet been compounded by physician or druggist. There is nothing in medical print that can at all compare with it. And no less so is it the very best tonic, stimulant, nervine, diuretic, alterative, anti-dyspeptic, appetizer, hematic (blood medicine), &c., &c., that has ever been compounded by doctor or layman. It should, therefore, always be kept on hand for immediate use.

A Gale at Asbury Park.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., July 23.—The most severe storm ever experienced here raged this afternoon. The wind blew with great violence for over an hour. The Madison Gilsey and Howard houses were unroofed by the gale, and six carriages loaded with people were upset and wrecked. A number of tents were blown down. At Ocean Grove an unknown colored man was blown out to sea in a boat and was drowned.

A Western Storm.

DETROIT, Mich., July 26.—The statement sent out to-day that Onondaga village, in Ingham county, is swept away by a cyclone is without foundation. The storm did not come within about two miles of that village, but swept in its fury through the township of Onondaga. The storm commenced about two and one half miles southeast of Eaton Rapids, in the township of Hamlin, Eaton, where it demolished the barns of Nathaniel Taylor and Henry Nesbitt. In Ingham county it first struck the house of Rue Perrin, and the house occupied by Eugene Henry. It was occupied at the time by Mrs. Henry and her six children, and was blown to atoms. Mrs. Henry and four of the children were considerably bruised, but two of them, named Delora and Delah respectively aged 4 and 5 years, were blown about thirty rods from the house into a clover field and instantly killed, their necks and arms being broken and their skulls crushed. Other houses and barns were more or less damaged. When the storm reached the house of Mrs. Elizabeth Barlow, 3 miles from the village of Leslie, the wind picked up the house, threw it off its foundation and scattered it into fragments. Mrs. Barlow, who was engaged in canning fruit at the time, was instantly killed. Her body was found about two rods from the spot where the house had stood, and it was found that her neck had been broken.

Killed by a Cave-in.

READING, July 25.—A cave-in occurred to-day at the New Hampton reservoir, being built for an additional supply of water for this city. About a dozen Italian laborers were working under a large embankment, when suddenly, without warning, the whole embankment, weighing about twenty-five tons, caved in, burying two of the laborers, named Natiula Sandora and Rumino Britzia. They were removed from their perilous position as soon as possible and taken to St. Joseph's Hospital. Sandora's injuries were internal. He was unconscious and died shortly after. Britzia had a leg broken and is otherwise badly bruised.

Eight Persons Drowned.

RICHMOND, July 25.—Night before last a boat containing eight men and and two young girls, all colored, who were crossing the James river at Claremont to attend a prayer meeting at Sandy Point, upset and eight of the party were drowned. The captain of a sloop lying at Claremont saved two of the men.

A Railroad Horror.

ALBION, N. Y., July 28.—A distressing and terribly disastrous accident happened at 9:25 o'clock on Saturday night, on the Rome, Watertown and Ogdensburg railroad, near a small station called Carlton, in Orleans county, ten miles northwest from Albion, on the Central road, and thirty-six miles west of Charlotte, by which nineteen persons were killed and as many more injured, some so seriously that death is certain. The accident was caused by a collision between the tourist train running from Niagara Falls to the Thousand Islands, Montreal, Quebec and other eastern points, and a freight car which the wind had blown from a switch upon the main track. The passenger train consisted of eight sleepers, two baggage cars and one coach, drawn by two locomotives. Carlton is a very out of the way station and the passenger train did not stop there, but rushed through at a high rate of speed. The freight car was struck at a point thirty rods east of the station, which is a small and unpretentious structure, and is presided over by William Barry, a young fellow apparently not over twenty-one years old.

As soon as the engineer of the locomotive saw the freight car on the track he whistled down brakes, and he and his fireman jumped, thus saving themselves from serious injury. The engine jumped the track and remained in the ditch. The second engine turned a complete somersault and the engineer, James McCarty, was so badly scalded that the hair fell from his head and his finger nails dropped off. He died at eleven o'clock this forenoon. The fireman, Louis France, was instantly killed, and Archie Taylor, the baggageman, was also instantly killed. W. H. Chauncey, the train despatcher, was badly bruised, and that includes all the railroad men who were killed or injured. The list of passengers is much greater.

Death of a Distinguished Man.

WASHINGTON, July 27.—Hon. Montgomery Blair died at his residence at Silver Springs this morning. His funeral will take place on Monday afternoon from Rock Creek church and his remains will be placed in the family vault in Rock Creek cemetery.

Deceased was the son of Francis Preston Blair, the great American journalists and Jacksonian politician. Montgomery was born in Franklin county, Ky., May 10, 1813. He was educated at West Point.

In 1861 he was appointed by President Lincoln postmaster general, which post he held till 1864. Since that time he has acted with the opponents of the Republican party.

The postmaster general to-day issued the following order as a mark of respect to the late Hon. Montgomery Blair, ex-postmaster general: "It is hereby directed that the postoffice department building be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days from this date, and that the flags on the building be placed at half-mast until after the burial of the deceased ex-postmaster general, and that department be closed on Monday, July 30, the day of his funeral."

Braddock Bandits.

PITTSBURG, July 26.—Yesterday evening Special Detective G B. Perkin, of the United States secret service, aided by officers of the same service and two Pittsburg detectives, succeeded in capturing the leader and three members of the most desperate gang of highwaymen that has ever terrorized the people in this vicinity.

The names of those implicated are John G. Gordon, leader of the gang, and an ex-convict, Robert M. Geary, Albert Cruzan, and Dr. John P. Buck, and although Dr. Buck remained in Braddock, the others disappeared. They were finally traced to Cumberland, to which point Cruzan was shadowed from Pittsburg yesterday and arrested.

The Crew Drowned, but the Captain Saved.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—Captain Arnlot, of the British steamship Mentmore, reports that when off Thomas Point, yesterday afternoon, he observed a capsized schooner. He sent a boat to her and rescued Captain J. H. Scrimminger, of the schooner Mattie Fidget, of Yorktown, bound from Baltimore for Norfolk. The schooner was capsized off Thomas Point yesterday afternoon during a squall and the crew, consisting of Henry Brooks, Sherman Diggs and John Reed (all colored), were drowned. The boat searched around in the vicinity of the disaster for some time, but could find no one except the captain.

Dentists must Register.

According to an act recently passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor dentists must register in the Recorder's office of the county in which they reside, the diploma or certificate provided for by a former act. If they have no such diploma or certificate they must make affidavit before some authorized person that they have practiced three years, and shall have this affidavit recorded. Dentists who disobey the act will incur a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $200.

Injurious Ice Cream.

JOLIET, Ill., July 26.—Over one hundred persons in attendance at a lawn party here last evening were made seriously ill by eating ice cream which is supposed to have contained poison. None of the victims have died, though several are in a critical condition.

Cholera's Course.

LONDON, July 27.—An individual in the London docks who, it is said, has the cholera, was taken Wednesday. A case of supposed cholera reported from Wales, occurred at Llanfyllin, and resulted in death twenty-four hours after the victim was attacked. Another case supposed to have been cholera happened at Kensington a few days ago. The victim, who was a drunkard, died two hours after taken ill. The officers of the local government board do not believe that isolated cases imply an outbreak of Asiatic cholera. Several deaths occur from diseases in London weekly at this season of the year, which are classified as cholera, but which are difficult to distinguish from aggravated diarrhœa. There have been several hundred cases of the latter disease weekly this summer, which is in excess of the average.

LONDON, July 27.—Sir Charles Dilke, president of the local government board, while replying in commons this afternoon to Sir Stafford Northcote, said that in the last fortnight there have been three suspicious cases of sickness in England which were declared to be cholera, but it has been ascertained that they were what is known as simple cholera. There is no Asiatic cholera, he said, in England or in Europe.

Webb's Body Found.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 29.—The body of Captain Webb, the famous English swimmer, who lost his life on the afternoon of the 24th inst., while attempting to swim through the whirlpool rapids, was found floating in the river near Lewiston, four miles below the head of the rapids, at half past 10 o'clock this forenoon. It was first discovered by R. W. Turner, a laborer employed near the river bank, who, in company with Mr. R. Robinson, took it to a small boathouse on the American shore, near by, where it was at once identified as that of the brave captain. The body is but little disfigured, and still has on the red silk trunks worn by the captain when he made his fatal plunge. His right hip is considerably abraded and there are several black and blue spots on the head and shoulders, giving evidence of his having been bruised while the blood was still in circulation.

At the inquest held this afternoon a verdict of "Found drowned" was rendered. During the examination of the body a ragged cut was discovered on top of the head. The cut was about three inches in length and was opened sufficiently to expose the skull. It had the appearance of being cut by a rock or other hard, rough substance, and is supposed to have been done at the entrance to the whirlpool, where rocks in places project above the surface of the water, and where the current is wildest. This wound was considered sufficient in itself to have caused death, and it is thought that he sank immediately after receiving it.

Mr. Frederick Kyle, Webb's manager, sent a dispatch from Boston this morning offering $100 for the recovery of the body.

Enthusiasm at Chambersburg.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., July 27.—Fully ten thousand people visited Chambersburg to-day to witness the dedication of four Howitzer cannon, presented to the Franklin county memorial association by the government. The presentation was made in accordance with an act passed by congress in 1870, donating condemned cannon to certain towns and cities, of which Chambersburg was one. They have only been recently placed in position in the inclosure of the memorial fountain. This fountain and the monument was built at a cost of $32,000, and dedicated in July, 1878, to the memory of the fallen dead of Franklin county. The ceremonies to day consisted of parade of the Frederick, Maryland, riflemen; Hagerstown light infantry company, Eighth regiment of National Guards of Pennsylvania, and the following Grand Army posts: Simmons and No. 58, Harrisburg; Caldwell, Carlisle; Walker, Waynesboro'; Stevens, Fayetteville; Pomeroy, Roaksburg; Reno, Hagerstown, and Housem, Chambersburg. After the parade and dedication by the latter post an address was delivered by Colonel A. K. McClure, of Philadelphia. This evening there was a grand display of fireworks.

ADDITIONAL LOCAL NEWS

—"Ceres" smiled favorable on the fair, wide fields of Mr. George K. Baker of Lemont and gave him a bountiful yield, some of the new varieties of wheat being surprisingly prolific. His father, 'Squire Joseph Baker, brought three beautiful clusters of wheat stalks into our sactum to-day. They are the "White Russian," "Martin Amber" and "Golden Prolific." Each of these is a new variety and promises splendidly.

The "Harvest Home" Picnic.

The party of young gentlemen who went from this place to the "harvest home" picnic at Millheim on Friday enjoyed the occasion very much. They were Messrs. Joe Montgomery, J. Frank Yealy, Edgar Swartz, Corny Garman, Frank Schock, J. C. Meyer and Henry Lyon. It was a regular basket picnic, private parties taking and eating their own lunch. During the day a game of base ball of seven innings was played by two pick-up nines, the Bellefonte boys having their numbers increased to the requisite degree by three accessions from Mifflinburg. The opposing nine was composed of young men from Millheim. The result was quite creditable to the visitors, the score standing 29 to 15 in their favor.

The Bellefonte party took their dinner and supper at the National Hotel, which is ably conducted under the proprietorship of Mr. F. T. Frain. They speak in the highest terms of the way they were treated. They returned home quite late at night well pleased with the day's enjoyment.

Light on the Subject.

There are not many towns of the proportions of Bellefonte that can boast of two chartered electric light companies. That is what Bellefonte can do, however. They are the "Bellefonte Edison Electric Illuminating Company" and the "Bellefonte Electric Lighting and Steam Heating Company." We understand that the latter company also expects to utilize electricity as a motive power. The first mentioned company, as its name implies, will use the electric light patented by Edison, the noted inventor. The second company expects to choose the best among the 30 or 40 distinct varieties of electric light. Both companies are composed of Bellefonte's best business men, one gentleman, we understand, belonging to each of them, which shows that he must have an abiding faith in electricity and is determined to be on the winning side. The Bellefonte Lighting and Heating Company is already making arrangements to equip its establishment with the most modern electric lighting machinery.

—We are told that a report of base ball at the Methodist picnic is incomplete without reference to the "great hit" made by Mr. David Lieb, captain of the "giant nine." Rees was pitching with the utmost nonchalance for his side, putting them out as slick as a whistle one after another, when to his surprise he saw the ball batted all the way to second base and Mr. Lieb running as swift as a deer toward first. He was wonderfully surprised as it was the first time to many present that the learned principal of the public schools was known to be possessed of such stupendous skill at the National game. He has now established a right to take his place among the foremost athletes in this place and might gain a reputation as a noted base ballist if such an ambition possessed charms for him.

—A meeting of the commissioners of the state industrial reformatory was held in Huntingdon on Tuesday evening, July 24, for the purpose of awarding the contract for the erection of ward "A." This ward will be fifty-seven feet wide, and 246 feet in length and is to be precisely similar to ward "B," which is now nearing completion. Those of the commissioners present were Charles Thompson Jones, Hon. Henry C. Howell and Hon. Henry Rawle, of Philadelphia; William Nolan, of Reading, and Col. Thomas B. Kennedy, of Chambersburg. No award was made, although several bids were considered, the lowest being that of Henry Shenk, of Erie, who was the successful bidder for ward "B." Another meeting of the commissioners will be held in Harrisburg on Tuesday next, when the award will be made.

—The absence of Mr. John Olewine from his ordinary duties in James Harris & Co's hardware establishment during two or three days is accounted for at last. Those who supposed he was taking care of that "darling daughter" are in error, for she can almost take care of herself. In fact, he was entertaining one of Job's comforters, a full-fledged and very lively boil. If it had appeared on the end of his nose he might have endured it with more equanimity, but as its peculiar location rendered it uncomfortable and painful for him either to sit down or rise up he concluded to remain at home. Happily, the boil, which bobbed up so serenely, has now reached its time for disappearing.

—Car No. 60, formerly used by the superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad, is now undergoing repairs at Altoona and will be placed at the disposal of President Arthur for use on his proposed western trip.

—Gen. James A. Beaver of this place, accompanied by his two sons, started on Tuesday on a very interesting tour of the State. It will be unusually gratifying to the travelers because the journey will be made in a carriage and will occupy about a month, during which the General expects to see more of his native State, the old Keystone, then in a year of ordinary travel. The fact that many of the most fertile valleys in the State are not visible to those who travel by rail renders such a mode of traversing the State very delightful. The General expects to reach Greensburg, Westmoreland county, about the 6th of August, to participate in the anniversary of the battle of Bushy Run, to be celebrated on that date. He will reach Conneaut Lake in time for the Second Brigade encampment. Continuing on his interesting tour he will reach home about the 23d proximo, when if he and his sons do not have a better idea of what Pennsylvania is like than the majority of people it will be because they lack the powers of observation.

—The Bellefonte base ball nine who so effectually walked over the Millheim nine at the "harvest home" picnic are comparatively "green" at the national game and their triumph was a surprise.

Birds of Passage.

Mrs. Matthews, of the Quaker City, is a guest in the family of Mr. Robert Valentine.

Prof. Harvey, of Lock Haven, departed Monday morning after a few dayss pent in this place.

The family of Mr. James Sommerville are spending the warm weather period in Snow Shoe.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lingle are entertaining Mrs. L's mother, Mrs. J. J. Brower, of Bloomsburg.

Mrs. Robert A. Cassidy and two children, of Canton, Ohio, are the guests of Mrs. George Bayard of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Lane and Miss Mary Thomas have just returned from a delightful trip to Cape May and Long Branch.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Weaver, of Clearfield, spent Sunday with Mrs. W's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jno. P. Harris, of this place.

Rev. Mr. Fortney officiated at the morning service in the Presbyterian church Sunday, the sanctuary being closed in the evening.

Mrs. Dr. Charles Shaffner, of Philadelphia, daughter of Mr. J. V. Thomas, is favoring her friends in Bellefonte with her presence among them.

Mr. McMillen, the popular proprietor of the Brockerhoff House, is again at home, presiding over the destinies of his handsome carivansary with his usual easy and graceful manner.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Crider are entertaining their friends Mr. and Mrs. North and Mrs. Jacobs, of Mifflintown. They are exceedingly pleasant people and we hope they will enjoy their visit.

Mr. Richard Thomas returned on Saturday evening from a pleasant trip to the sea shore. He never made a visit to the level of the sea that proved more gratifying and we hope his tender experiences may—but this is a delicate matter and we shall stop.

Mrs. W. L. Malin and two daughters and Miss Fannie Gray returned on Saturday evening from a three weeks visit, most of the time being spent with friends of Mrs M. in Goshen, Chester county, although their trip also included a short stay at Atlantic City.

Eagleville Dots.

EAGLEVILLE, July 24, 1883.

MR. EDITOR: Eagleville is forging to the front with some notable improvements, which increases the happiness of the average inhabitant.

Our friend, Mr. Samuel Glossner, is improving the appearance of his house with paint and other adornments. This, to say the least, looks suspicious on the part of our friend Sam.

Rev. Ridge has added a very neat lattice work to the portico of his dwelling.

John Stull is making preparations to build himself a residence on Main street. We hope John will succeed as he is an industrious man.

The photograph gallery of Artist Berkstresser appeared on Monday on the corner of Williams Alley, which is a good place for the business, as each lady is better looking than the other, and of course they want each other's portraits.

The ordinary monotony of the "corner" was disturbed on Monday night by a lively knock-down between two of our pugilistic braves.

Modern dancing has become quite popular among Italians, Hungarians, drunkards, little boys and others of whom we may speak hereafter.

We are feeling somewhat elevated account of railroads, telegraphs telephones. Yours,

LATROVE.

—Children are now admitted to the soldiers' orphan schools subject to two conditions—1st, That the father is dead. In this case it must be shown by satisfactory testimony that the cause of the father's death can be traced back to circumstances connected with the war—wounds, disease, or impaired health. 2d, That if the father is still living, that he is sick or disabled. In cases of this kind the application must contain evidence showing that the sickness or disability was caused by the war. In either case there is a uniform and prescribed form, which must be strictly adhered to, and a number of blanks that must be properly filled out.

—The new law reducing the rates of postage will go into effect on the first of October next, and the authorities are now engaged in the work of preparing the new stamps. The law substitutes two cents per half ounce on letters for three cents the present rate. The old three cent stamp will be abolished, and in its stead will be issued a two cent stamp of new design.

—New books have recently been purchased for the library of the Millheim Lutheran Sunday school.

—Mr. George Dale, of Lemont, Pa., executor of the estate of the late Robert Kendall, deceased, offers for sale on Thursday, August 16, at 2 o'clock p. m., three valuable properties. One is a farm located near the village of Houserville in College township; the second is a tract of over 18 acres in the same township, and the third is a farm of 127 acres in Benner township. These properties offer very strong inducements to those who may be contemplating the purchase of a home. The terms are exceedingly reasonable. Full description of lands and other particulars are published elsewhere in this issue.

Business Notices and Other Items.

—Mr. Curtin's residence on Linn street is receiving the addition of a French roof.

—Sugar for preserving at Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—The "Harvest Home" picnic at Millheim was too early. A week later would have been better.

—Some astronomers are of opinion that there is no water on the planet Venus. Perhaps not, but there are excellent groceries at Sechler's store.

—Quite a large party was given at the residence of Mr. John P. Harris on Tuesday evening of last week by his daughters in honor of their guest, Miss Woodcock.

—Wolf and Parsons are the tinners at Jas. Harris & Co.'s hardware store. 28 2t

—When a young man wants to protect a young lady he naturally puts his armor round her.

—The "open sesame" of all that is worth having in the grocery line is through the entranee to Harry Teats & Co.'s store.

—Telegrams are received at the Western Union office subject to from four to eight hours delay.

—Vienna is to have an elevated railroad; but her inhabitants will never be happy until they secure a duplicate of Sechler's grocery store.

—The Y. M. C. A. line has a Congregational Plymouth Rock road bed, Episcopal continuous rails, Presbyterian through tickets, Baptist water in the boiler, Methodist fire in the engine and coaches for Christians of every name. It is a universal favorite.

—Remember that Harry Teats & Co. are among the most reliable grocers in this place.

—The Evangelical Association of Millheim will hold a camp meeting in Gephart's grove on the 16th of August.

—The employment of many harvest hands means much cooking on the farm and if Harry Teats & Co.'s excellent groceries are used culinary operations will be rendered 10 per cent. easier.

—A letter in the post-office is addressed "Miss Effie T. Bullock, Centre county, Pa."

—The State normal school at Lock Haven, one of the best schools in the State, has graduated 266 students in six years. The next term opens Tuesday, August 28. Send for a catalogue.

—The Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Bellefonte was chartered on Wednesday at Harrisburg. Capital, $5,000. Now we'll have abundance of light and of the most modern kind.

—The many people who advocate that their sons should learn trades should also remember that it is equally important for them to learn early in life to purchase groceries at Sechler's store. The habit, acquired early in life, will be a lasting source of congratulation to them, and will have the effect of putting money in their pockets.

—A letter mailed on the train last week has found its way to the Bellefonte postoffice. It is addressed, "E. J. Denning, Broadway 4th Ave., 9th and 10th St." The postmark is "L H. and Tyrone."

—When you want a first-class job of tinwork done go to Harris' hardware store and have Wolf do it. Best stock First-class mechanics. 28 2t

—Prothonotary Harper was indisposed on his way to the "harvest home." For further particulars see picture of small boy in Harper's Bazaar.

—Go to Jas. Harris & Co.'s hardware store for your tinware, spouting, roofing and repairing. All work warranted. 28 2t

—Considering the bright prospects of the State normal school at Lock Haven, and the superior advantages it offers, there is no cheaper good school in the State.

—It is said that if an orange or a lemon is put in buttermilk it will remain quite fresh for months. This is worth trying and while you are about it just buy your orange, lemon or any other fruit, vegetable or groceries you may desire at Sechler's store. They are the freshest and best in the market.

—Our respected contemporary of the Centre Democrat assert that there is a young lady living near Bellefonte who has a white feather growing among the eyelashes of one of her upper eyelids. This is a sure sign that she is an angel.—Watchman.

Pooh! you cannot prove that angels are equipped with feathers. It's a surer sign that she's a white dove.

—Many of the graduates from the Lock Haven State normal school are earning from thirty to fifty dollars a month more than they received before taking a course at that school. The total expenses for the graduating year are about $130.

THE LATEST NEWS.

An Excursion Horror.

BALTIMORE, July 24.—A terrible calamity occurred at North Point Tivoli, an excursion resort on the Patapsco, ten miles from this city, about 10 o'clock last night, by which many lives were lost, the number being estimated at between sixty and seventy. The accident was occasioned by the giving way of the outer portion of the pier on which several hundred persons were congregated, awaiting the boat to return to this city. The locality is on a small bay, distant about two miles from the North Point lighthouse. It was formerly known as Holly Grove, and was the first regular excursion place fitted up near the city, fifteen years ago, and was the most popular resort at that time and for several years afterward. Yesterday an excursion was given to Tivoli under the management of the Mt. Royal Beneficial society of the Catholic church of Corpus Christi, of which Father Starr is the pastor, at Mt. Royal avenue and Mosher street. The excursionists went down on the barge Cockade City, which was towed by the tug Amanda Powell. The barge was formerly an old canal boat, which had been fitted up with several decks for excursion purposes, and has been used as such for several years. Yesterday she made three trips, the last being made from this city between 6 and 7 o'clock last evening, and reached Tivoli before 10 o'clock. During the day she had taken down about five hundred persons and on her last trip about one hundred. A large number of those who went down during the day had remained, intending to return on the last trip. When the barge approached all those on shore made a rush for the end of the wharf, which is several hundred feet long, and were closely packed together at the gate, about twenty-five feet from the end, impatiently awaiting admittance through the gate. As the barge came alongside and struck the wharf it suddenly, and without warning, gave way, and a large portion of the crowd was precipitated into the water, which is about ten feet deep. Many were able to save themselves by fleeing toward the shore as the outer end of the pier crumbled and fell. The darkness added to the confusion and terror, and little could be done at once to rescue the drowning, most of whom were women and children.

Up to noon sixty-five bodies have been brought to the city. All, except four, have been identified. As soon as the bodies had been deposited on the wharf the barge went back to Tivoli, and before 7 o'clock this morning had returned to Henderson's wharf with her second load of dead bodies, numbering over 30. By this time the news of the calamity had spread throughout the city, and thousands gathered at the wharf and in the vicinity. Throughout the night many persons, fathers, mothers, brothers and friends connected with the excursionists had gathered at the Light street wharf, where the barge usually lands, anxiously awaiting her arrival and apprehending a disaster when the boat did not come at her usual time. As the hours wore on past midnight and there were yet no tidings of their friends, their fears were increased almost to conviction that some dreadful accident had befallen the party. At a later hour their fears were realized when the facts became known. As fast as the bodies were identified by relatives and friends they were taken to their respective homes. The unidentified bodies were carried to the Eastern police station, to remain until recognized or otherwise disposed of.

An Unsuccessful Attempt to Swim the Niagara River.

BUFFALO, July 24.—Captain Matthew Webb, the noted English swimmer, perished in an attempt to swim the Niagara river whirlpool rapids this afternoon. He was rowed in a skiff to opposite the Old Maid of Mist landing by John McCloy, a ferryman at the falls, and leaped from the boat at 2 minutes past 4 o'clock. The daring swimmer passed the big rapids all right keeping the middle of the stream. When he struck the whirlpool he was rushed to the American side where the waves, it is estimated, are from thirty to forty feet high and the last seen of him was to throw up one arm. His shoot of the rapids was thrilling. His intention was to pass the whirlpool on the Canada side. Webb leaves a wife and two children in England. The refusal of the railroad and hotel managers to have anything to do with what they termed his going to his death rendered the affair financially a failure. The river has been searched for two miles below the whirlpool and no trace of the foolhardy man can be found, and it is generally conceded that he was engulfed in the whirlpool.

A Curious and Fatal Accident.

LANCASTER, July 22.—Michael Wolf, a well-known stone mason of this city, was fatally injured yesterday afternoon. He and his son were carrying a plank for a scaffolding to be used in the construction of a building on South Queen street, when the boy slipped and fell and the other end of the plank struck the father in his stomach. He was taken home, where he died of his injuries this morning.

Situation of the Strike.

CINCINNATI, July 23.—The telegraphic situation here is much improved to-day. Sunday intervening gave an opportunity to clear up the business that had accumulated and to afford them time for rest. The best of care is taken of the operators at work, in order to prevent exhaustion from overwork. The first attempt at organization of the new force was made to-day. The operators were permanently assigned to different wires, and business is moving in a much more satisfactory manner. The market reports are coming in regularly from all points. Superintendent Miller feels much encouraged by the situation this morning. The strikers still maintain confidence, and their conduct has been irreproachable.

MEMPHIS, July 23.—There is an improved condition of the Western Union telegraph office this morning. Manager Howard now has ten working, having been reinforced to-day by thoroughly competent operators from Vicksburg. The gold and stock indicators at the Merchants' Exchange, and the two bucket shops are working this morniug. All the market reports saving those from Chicago have been received. The strikers continue to remain firm.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The Western Union company has recruited a new force for the gold and stock telegraph service in this city, and the market quotations are reaching subscribers as usual to-day. The situation otherwise is unchanged.

Cholera Raging.

LONDON, July 23.—A serious outbreak of cholera is expected at Bombay, as there were thirty-seven sporadic cases of disease there during the last week. At Suez quarantine against arrivals from the infected and suspected ports has been revived. Advices from Egypt state that in addition to the outbreak of cholera at the town of Fareskour, eight miles southwest of Damietta, leprosy has appeared there and is spreading rapidly. There are neither doctors nor medicines at Fareskour.

The returns of mortality from cholera in Egypt differ widely. A dispatch to Reuter's telegram company states that the number of deaths at Cairo and suburbs in the twenty four hours ending at eight o'clock this morning were 427; at Ghizeh, 68; at Chibin, 150. The English government will dispatch twelve doctors, who are experts in cholera, to Egypt, to-morrow.

ALEXANDRIA, July 23.—The report of deaths for Sunday from cholera is as follows: At Damietta, 17; Maosourah, 10; Samanoud, 23; Tantah, 17; Chobar, 17; Chibin, 22; at nine other places, 78. There were 295 deaths from the disease at Cairo during that time.

Caught by a Tornado.

MILWAUKEE, July 22.—A train on the Chicago and Northwestern railroad was caught in a tornado yesterday fifteen miles south of Green Bay, and nearly wrecked. The rain poured through the cars and drenched the passengers. The cars stood on one rail for a long distance, owing to the force of the wind, and trees fell across the track, being broken off like pipe stems. The darkness was so great that the engineer could not see out of the cab. Washouts occurred on nearly all railroads in this vicinity, and it is rumored that two trains were thrown from the track and the passengers slightly injured by being thrown from their berths. Mrs. Grace Faull was killed at Dodgeville by the downfall of her house, which was struck by the tornado, and another woman is reported to have been killed at a small town near Dodgeville. Buildings were blown down in every direction and crops were prostrated.

Saturday's Storm.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 23.—Later advices of Saturday's storm indicate that its track was one to two miles wide, and crossed Blue Earth, Waseck Steele, Dodge, Olmstead and Wabasha counties. The most serious damage occurred in the villages of Kasata, Owatonna and Elgin. At Elgin three persons were seriously injured. Near Manterville there were nine serious casualties by the overturning of a passenger train. Near Owatonna thirty-four persons sustained injuries of a more or less serious nature. Near Hitchcock Mr. Grissinger and mother were killed, and Mrs. Bowles was killed, near Redfield. Near Huron, Dakota, it was reported nine persons were killed and fifty wounded.

Ex-Governor Swann Dead.

BALTIMORE, July 25.—Specials received in this city to-night state that ex-Governor Thomas Swann, of Maryland, died at his estate near Leesburg, London county, Va., at 8 o'clock to-night. Governor Swann was a representative from this city in the 42d, 43d, 44th and 45th congresses, and during the latter was chairman of the committee on foreign affairs. He was at one time president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, being elected to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. Louis McLane. He was a native of Alexandria, Va., and was born in 1805.

A Real Earl in Newport.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 24.—The Earl of Onslow, with fourteen large trunks and quite a retinue of servants, arrived at the Ocean House this evening. He hails from White Hall, England. Lieutenant General Packerton, of the British army, together with his wife and son, are the guests of Harry Ingersoll, of Philadelphia. Baron von Alphen, of the British Legation, has arrived here.

The Deadly Cholera.

LONDON, July 25.—A dispatch to the Times says the number of deaths from cholera at Mansurah yesterday was 13, at Chirbin 113, at Zifteh 23, at Mahallet 43, at Ghizeh 95 and at Tantah 10. Two hundred and eighty-four deaths from the disease occurred at Cairo within twelve hours. Bills of health which were given vessels leaving London to day declare that no cholera exists here. Mr. Mitchell, the American vice consul and acting consul general, has appointed a physician to inspect all vessels going to America.

PARIS, July 25.—The government have introduced in the chamber of deputies, and demanded urgency therefore, a credit of 50,000 francs for paying the expenses of a scientific commission, which it is proposed to send to Egypt to investigate the cholera epidemic.

Shooting Into a Crowd of Boys.

PATERSON, July 23.—John Hough, colored boatman on the Morris Canal, to-day discharged a double-barreled gun at a crowd of boys who had been throwing stones at him. Joseph and William Farrell, brothers, were hit in the face and head, but were not seriously injured. Hough escaped into the woods, where he was pursued by an infuriated mob. He was found hiding in the bushes by two men, who concealed him until a grocery wagon passed, when they placed him in it and drove rapidly to this city, chased by the crowd, who wanted to lynch Hough. The latter is now in jail here.

Dr. Mary Walker still Defiant.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Dr. Mary Walker still persists in keeping herself before the public. She was recently dismissed from the Pension Office, but refuses to draw that portion of her salary to which she was entitled for two weeks of July. The doctor claims that by receiving her July money she will virtually admit that she has been discharged. This she does not see fit to do at present, so she intends to contest her case further. If necessary she will go to Congress for relief.

Compliments for the American Riflemen.

LONDON, July 23.—The Times, referring to the rifle match, says: "To qualify our national complacency it is well to remember not only the superiority of the Americans at the shorter and more practically important ranges, but that they, though shooting in weather stranger to them than to the English, made a closer fight than at Creedmoor. It would have been unjust to insist upon their abandoning the wind gauges."

The Mexican "Outrage" Greatly Exaggerated.

MONTEREY, Mexico, July 23.—The accounts of the robbery of the American Consulate in this city as published show great exaggeration. It was but an ordinary attempt at robbery, and no more worthy of comment than if the attempt had been made on the house of a private citizen. The robber probably knew of the absence of the Consul, hence the attempt. Mr. Shaw was not dangerously injured.

How a Woman's Life was Saved.

After she had tested the skill of all the best doctors in Western Pennsylvania and New York, and had paid over $1,000 without receiving any permanent good, the limbs became affected with even tenfold greater virulence, not only eating away the flesh, but attacking the bones beneath. It also affected her head and face, making her almost blind and deaf, reduced to a mere skeleton, weighing but 80 pounds, the doctors pronounced her at death's door. Peruna was then given her, as stated, and with the result given on page 24 in Dr. Hartman's "Ills of Life." She took no other medicine and is perfectly well.

Miscellaneous Mention.

Bellefonte and Buffalo Run railroad is now ready for the rails.

This is conceded to be the dullest season of the year, but is welcomed by those who were overworked when business of all sorts was more active.

Joseph Devling, the well known surveyor, started for another trip to the mountains yesterday. He went in the direction of Burnside township. Previous to his departure, however, he supplied himself with a bottle of some sort of a preparation which is warranted to keep away the gnats and mosquitoes which sometimes are so troublesome as to be almost unbearable.

Put up fruit now and you'll have an opportunity of putting it down next winter.

Some fellow has just brought to light the information that the first snow of the past winter fell on the night of the 12th of November, 1882, and the last on the 21st of May, a winter period of six months and nine days.

Mr. John Whitehead, an extensive coal operator of the Clearfield region, on Thursday, July 12, met with an exciting adventure with two highwaymen. He was driving from Karthaus to Snow Shoe, when he saw ahead of him two men standing on either side of the road near a bridge which spans a deep ravine. He recollected seeing the same men once before at which time they watched him closely, and believing they meant to waylay him on this occasion he provided himself with a branch of a tree and a stout club. He heard one man advise the other to "make a sure shot." Both men sprang at the horse when near, but Mr. Whitehead whipped the animal and clubbed the men, escaping and also having the satisfaction of seeing one fall to the ground in consequence of a blow from the club. The brave man did not consider it worth while to mention the occurrence at the hotel where he remained during the night. But when he went to the train at 4 o'clock next morning he met them again. They once more attempted to attack him, but he struck at them both, knocking one down and again escaped. They doubtless supposed he carried a large amount of money but as he had only $15 with him they encountered great risk for a small sum.

Pennsylvania Railroad Officials.

The three gentlemen referred to in the following paragraphs from the Philadelphia Record were with the party of Pennsylvania Railroad officials who visited this place on Saturday morning, July 21:

President George B. Roberts, of the Pennsylvania railroad company, began as a rodman in the engineer corps, and was soon made assistant engineer in the construction of the eastern division of the line. He soon became fourth vice president, and passed through the different chairs until he became president.

Charles E. Pugh, general manager, entered the service of the company as a passenger brakeman. He has successfully filled the position of passenger conductor, depot agent, train master, division superintendent, general agent at Philadelphia, general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad division, and general manager of all the company's lines east of Philadelphia and Erie.

S. M. Prevost, the general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad division, entered the service of the company in 1871 as assistant engineer on the Philadelphia division. He was afterward transferred to the Bedford division. Then he became superintendent of the Philadelphia division, and on October 1, 1882, was made general superintendent of the Pennsylvania railroad division, with headquarters at Altoona.

The New Bridge.

The builders of the High street bridge can exert their ingenuity in bringing order out of the chaos which now prevails about the scene of operations. High street for a distance of over a square is lined with huge stones waiting for the grappling irons to convey them to their place in the foundation. Workmen have been engaged excavating the old foundation and the immense derrick erected last week to convey the stones from place to place performed its work well. The grappling irons did not fish for stones in vain, but curious crowds watched them lift the heavy stones with ease. The important work of completing the bridge structure will now, we presume, proceed uninterruptedly and when finished it will be an ornament to High street.

—Last week an Italian boy accosted a lad named Feese near the glass works requesting him to trade knives. Feese replied that he had no knives to trade, whereupon the Italian attempted to stab him afflicting a slight cut in one of his legs. We understand that other Italians who were near punished the offending member of their company sufficiently and although Policeman Montgomery went to the scene of the occurrence it was not considered necessary to make any arrests.

Degrees of the G. A. R.

The members of the G. A. R., says the L. H. Journal, are discussing the proposition recently made to establish degrees in the organization, the eligibility to the several degrees being based on the term of service in the army. Under the present regulations any person who can show an honorable discharge from the service is eligible to membership, subject, of course, to the wishes of the members of the Post in which application is made. A prominent member of the organization, in discussing this question, said: "I do not think that at the meeting being held at Denver any serious attempt will be made to introduce side degrees. Those who served throughout the entire war have often talked of some distinctive branch of the Grand Army, in which the term of service could be recognized, but in my opinion any attempt at this time to introduce degrees would only result in disturbing the organization without effecting any good. For my own part, however, those who favor the introduction of degrees have right strong arguments on their side. When the organization was first formed a stated term of service was a necessary requirement for membership. Then came the wounded and disabled who had honorable discharges, and they were admitted. The latest modification was in favor of emergency men, any one of whom showing an honorable discharge was eligible to membership if other requirements are complied with. It is a noticeable fact that most of the old soldiers, who, despite wounds which might have obtained for them henorable discharges, remained in the army, do not make any parade of their badges or try to make capital out of their connection with the organization. On the other hand there are men whose actual term of service did not exceed 30 days, that only as emergency men, who wear the G. A. R. badge, take the liveliest interest in the campfires and endeavor to control the whole organization. If a system of degrees could be adopted which would suppress this class, I don't know but I would be in favor of it."

The Italians.

It is said that the reason that the Italians subsist on such extremely simple and homely fare is not because they do not desire something better, but because their aim is to save enough money to enable them to return to Italy. They demand comparatively high wages for their work and very prompt payment, refusing to continue work a single day longer than the time promised for payment if such pay is not tendered to them at the proper moment. Several contractors about town can testify to the truth of this. The fact that it is their aim to return home renders them undesirable and unprofitable as citizens, as they have no ambition to invest their hoarded funds and thus increase the wealth of the country. Their uncleanly habits afford another objection to them. Indeed, many of the objections to Chinese laborers may be urged against the Italians with the exception that they do not lower the wages for manual labor to any considerable extent.

—A woman named Emma Shannon living at Union Furnace, Union county, died on Friday, July 20, from the effects of an overdose of opium and laudanum. On Tuesday, the 16th of July, she sent a little girl to Lewisburg for two dollars' worth of these drugs, together with some quinine. It appears that she took at one time this entire purchase, with the exception of a little of the opium, which was afterwards found in her bed. Physicians were called in as soon as possible, but her slumber was too deep for their skill to break and she died on Friday. Her husband, John Shannon, an industrious, hard working man, and seven children mourn the loss of the wife and mother, who would have been a kind companion and protector had it not been for her excessive fondness for the fatal drugs.

—Bellefonters who intend spending a few days in Philadelphia, in going and coming from the sea shore, will find the Columbia House, on North Broad street, one of the most comfortable and homelike places to stop at in the city. It is situated in the heart of the city, one square from Broad street station of Pennsylvania railroad, and near to horse cars, public buildings, Wannamaker's depot and places of summer amusement. The table fare is excellent and the waiters are prompt and obliging in filling orders, or attending to other wants of the patrons of the house. Mrs. Hutton, the proprietress, is a most pleasant and popular landlady, and knows just how to make her guests feel comfortable and at home. The lady is well known in Bellefonte and vicinity, where she has several relatives living, and Centre county people may be sure of receiving a warm and courteous reception at the Columbia.

Centre County Veterans' Picnic.

This very pleasant reunion of the old soldiers of Centre county promises to be conducted on a scale of more than ordinary grandeur and magnificence this year. It will be held in a pleasant grove near Philipsburg on Thursday, September 13. A committee from Philipsburg was in town last week consulting with the veterans in this vicinity and they say that the residents of that place will prepare for a tremendous attendance and will be ready to give a warm and enthusiastic welcome to all who will come. They expect that at least 15,000 people will be in attendance. Excursion tickets will be issued on the railroads. The citizens of Philipsburg will excell themselves in their efforts to make the occasion a grand one, and as they are a lively and energetic people and have a large proportion of veterans among them we have no doubt that it will be one of the most successful in the history of the veterans' association of Centre county.

Summer.

Usually, in summer fickle humanity longs for winter and vice versa in winter it ardently desires summer, but even when the thermometer is lingering lovingly among the nineties we do not hesitate to pronounce this the most pleasant season of all the year. Now the least possible quantity of clothing brings the highest comfort, colds are at discount, there is a pleasant sensation in every passing zephyr and all nature rejoices. Oh, that the temperature, sunshine, flowers, foliage and showers of June and July could be prolonged forever!

County Fairs.

Following is a list of the time and place of some of county fairs to be held in Pennsylvania this fall:

Pittsburg Exposition, September 6; Luzerne county, September 11; Northumberland county, September 18; Union, Bradford county, September 19; Farmers', Tioga county, September 19; Troy, Bradford county, September 25; Potter county, September 25; Lycoming county, October 2; Union county, October 3; Snyder county, October 4; Columbia county, October 10.

—The storm that visited this section on the afternoon of Monday, July 23, was exceedingly severe at some points not far from Bellefonte while at other places in Centre county no storm at all was experienced. A gentleman who resides at Fillmore informed us that no traces of the storm were visible in that place while on the road between Fillmore and Bellefonte it raged violently, blowing over the haystacks and accomplishing considerable damage.

—The building on the lot next the Roman Catholic church on Bishop street is offered for sale, as the owners expect to begin the erection of their new church there next month. Here is a chance for somebody to secure a building cheap and at the same time contribute toward a good cause.

Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy.

This is beyond question the most successful Cough Medicine we have ever sold, a few doses invariably cure the worst cases of Cough, Croup, and Bronchitis, while its wonderful success in the cure of Consumption is without parallel in the history of medicine. Since its first discovery it has been sold on a guarantee a test which no other medicine can stand. If you have a cough we earnestly ask you to try it. Price 10 cts., 50 cts. and $1.00. If your lungs are sore, chest or back lame, use Shiloh's Porous Plaster. Price 25 cts. Sold by John Harris.

—Letters of administration upon the estate of the late Robert Hare Powell have been granted by the register of wills of Philadelphia to the widow of the deceased. Mr. Powell died intestate leaving property valued at about $2,000,000.

Don't Procrastinate.

If you have signs of pulmonary trouble, act promptly. "A stitch in time saves nine." Compound Oxygen will certainly arrest the progress of consumption if used in the early stages of that disease. It has already done so in a large number of cases. In proof of this the most direct and positive evidence will be furnished by Drs. Starkey & Palen, 1109 Girard street, Philadelphia. If you would like to submit your case and get an opinion of your condition, write to them and state all your symptoms clearly. It will cost you nothing, as they make no charge for consultation. Their reply and the documentary evidence which they will furnish as to what has been done by their new treatment, and also as to their professional standing, will put you in a position to judge for yourself whether to use their treatment or not.

—The team of young horses driven by Mr. Moore, of the Howe sewing machine agency, indulged in a lively but non-destructive runaway on Monday of last week.

—The drought which some people have been prophesying has not yet arrived.

A Lady Falls Down Stairs.

Mrs. Weakley, a lady about 55 years of age, mother of Mr. Weakley who occupies Mr. Bond Valentine's house on Curtin street, fell down a flight of stairs on Wednesday with her little granddaughter in her arms. When she fell she instinctively held the little one out of harm's way and the child was uninjured. But Mrs. Weakley sustained a very serious fracture of the arm and also ruptured a blood vessel in one of her lower limbs. The lady is endowed with fair health and a good constitution and will doubtless recover, although her injuries will prove decidedly painful and inconvenient for some time to come.

MAN-A-LIN

Drowned in Beer.

Concerning this Popular Beverage two Men Express their Minds.

"The fact is, sir, and you may stick a pin there, that the people of this country are likely to be drowned in a flood of lager beer," shouted an enthusiastic teetotaler the other day into the ear of your cornered correspondent. "That German drink has struck us hard. It is the second deluge."

"Yes, and the worst of this beer-drinking business is that it gets up kidney troubles, as a heavy wind raises the waves," added a city physician, who had a knowledge of the times and a tendency to metaphor. "The midnight 'schooner' leaves behind it a wake of furred tongues, headaches, torpid livers, nausea, and all that, and lays the foundation of Bright's Disease."

This melancholy fact accounts in part for the increasing sales of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER, which at once mitigates these symptoms. Price 25 cents. Ask your physician about it.

—The Undine Hose Company received a special invitation to attend the festival given on Saturday evening by the Pleasant Gap band and attended in large numbers attired in their handsome uniform. Two large conveyances carried them to the scene of the evening's festivities. Many private parties from Bellefonte also went to Pleasant Gap for the same purpose.

—In addition to the many other particulars in which Philipsburg is preeminently enterprising is the fact that every store in the town closes promptly at 8 o'clock, the excellent custom having been observed without any intermission during more than two months past. Philipsburg has a larger population of day laborers than Bellefonte and a smaller proportion of persons who can choose their own time for making purchases; nevertheless, the people continue to transact busines before 8 o'clock p. m.

—The Democratic county committee met on Saturday afternoon in the Arbitration room in the Court House and talked over the political situation in the State and county. The fact that twenty-three members of the committee were present is considered a reason for especial congratulation. Indeed, the elements were so astonished at the unusual political activity manifested that a Polar wave of considerable severity swept down from the North on Saturday p. m., just to give the perspiring statesmen a fair chance.

The State Convention of the W. C. T. U. in Bellefonte.

The Constitutional Prohibition Amendment Association met in Bellefonte last spring and were so much pleased with the town and its people that it now seems that there is a prospect that our people will be favored with another and still more important gathering, it being nothing less than the State Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union to meet in October next.

This organization, with its thirty-one State and two Territorial Unions, and its twenty-eight departments of work, is the largest society ever composed exclusively of women and conducted entirely by them. It is estimated to have three thousand local auxiliaries with a membership of fifty thousand or more, and a large number of juvenile organizations. It is the lineal descendent of the great "Temperance Crusade" which, in the winter of 1874, drove the liquor traffic out of 250 towns and villages, by means of fifty days spent in prayer and persuasion. The method of saloon visiting has been abandoned, and yet, systematic educational methods have taken its place, so that the society has been fitly described as "a union of Christian women of all churches, for the purpose of educating the young to temperance principles, forming a more enlightened public sentiment, reforming the drinking classes, transforming, by the power of divine grace, those who are enslaved by alcohol, and ultimately removing the dram-shop from our streets by law."

Of this society, United States Senator H. W. Blair, of New Hampshire, said: "It is one of the mightiest forces of this land."

John B. Gough said at Chautauqua, when speaking of this organization: "For forty years I have studied the Temperance movement, and I tell you the W. C. T. U. is doing more to advance the cause to-day than any or all other temperance societies combined."

The only organization of this great society in Centre county is the one in Bellefonte. While its officers have not yet given the convention permission to come to Bellefonte, in view of the desire to hold the convention here they adopt this manner of presenting the subject to the people and learning their opinion. It is a large organization composed of many of the brightest and most intelligent ladies in the State and would tax the utmost hospitality of our people. In this connection the officers of the society in this place desire us to publish a few words written to them by Mrs. E. M. Watson, Corresponding Secretary of the W. C. T. U. of Pennsylvania, who we believe was present at the Constitutional Amendment Convention. In the letter Mrs. Watson says:

"I know our annual meeting would improve temperance sentiment in your town and county. I am sure you would all love Mrs. Swift. Her work for home and foreign missions in the Presbyterian church made her well known before she was elected President of the W. C. T. U. At Scranton we met in the Presbyterian church, at Harrisburg in the hall of the House of Representatives and at Allegheny and Oil City in the M. E. churches. One of our best organizations is a new German union. If I could only speak the language, I would go into that work, for when you once convince a German woman she stands solid and works with an energy and enthusiasm that we know very little about.

Cor. Sec. W. C. T. U. of Penn'a."

The Death of the Late Washington Dunn.

The Missoula Times, of July 18, contains the following particulars regarding the sudden death of the late Mr. Washington Dunn, of Lock Haven, brother-in-law of Mrs. J. G. Love of this place:

The startling news of Washington Dunn's sudden death reached Missoula on Sunday morning and caused a deep feeling of sorrow among his many friends and acquaintances. No news had been received that he was unwell, and the announcement of his death was no less startling than painful, as he had lived several months in Missoula, made a great many friends and not an enemy.

Mr. Dunn left Missoula about two weeks ago to inspect a proposed branch of the Northern Pacific extending from Walla Walla to Pendleton, Washington Territory. He looked over the proposed route and was returning to Missoula when his death took place. From the testimony taken before the coroner's jury the following particulars are obtained:

Mr. Dunn boarded the train Friday evening at Wallula Junction. He complained of being unwell and retired shortly after. Saturday morning he said he did not feel well enough to get up, and called for a piece of toast and a glass of water. The porter of the car gave him water four times between then and 1 o'clock, p. m. He did not speak to him after that time. About 4 p. m. the porter was passing by, and looking in saw Mr. Dunn lying naturally with his head toward the window. At 8:20 he looked again and saw the body in the same position. Thinking it strange that he should lie so long without moving, he spoke, but obtained no answer, and then took hold of the body and thought it was dead. He hastily called the conductor, who in turn called Dr. Howe, of Cincinnati, a passenger, who found that Mr. Dunn was dead and had probably passed away about three hours before. There were no evidences of a struggle. Heart disease is believed to be the cause of his death.

Owing to an accident on the road it was nearly noon Sunday when the train reached Missoula. The body was removed to the residence of J. J. Fisk, a brother-in-law of Mr. Dunn, and embalmed.

Tribute of Friends to the Memory of the Late Mrs. Rachel Bailey Humes.

Died: On Thursday, the 19th of July, in the 67th year of her age, at the residence of her brother, W. H. Humes, near Bellefonte, Penn'a, Mrs. Rachel Bailey Humes, relict of Samuel Humes, late of Jersey Shore, and daughter of Hamilton and Ann Elmira Humes, both deceased, of the former place.

To Mr. and Mrs. Humes was born one son, Hamilton B. Humes, who is the President of the Jersey Shore Banking Company.

She was the sister of E. C. Humes, President of the First National Bank of Bellefonte, and had two sisters, one of whom, Mrs. Elizabeth McClure, is now residing at Lewisburg, and the other Caroline, whose death was caused by being thrown from a horse in early life.

In the decease of Mrs. Humes the community in which she lived, and especially her relatives, have sustained a loss which is irreparable and a chair has been made vacant which cannot easily be filled. Being of a quiet and retiring disposition, her character was not a demonstrative one, and yet she displayed in her walk and conversation some traits which rendered her life an agreeable and intensely interesting one to all her friends and acquaintances. To many of these she was greatly attached, and particularly to those in her native place, so much so that since her marriage, which occurred about half a century ago, she was regularly in the habit of visiting the home of her childhood at stated periods annually, for the purpose of meeting and rehearsing with her acquaintances the scenes and occurrences of her younger days; and while but few now remain the pleasure from these periodical interviews was highly appreciated by both parties.

Unselfish and self-possessed, she was uniformly kind and considerate of the comfort of others, and although firm and decided in her convictions, had a control of her disposition to a degree seldom attained; and yet conscientious in all that she did and being of a submissive turn of mind, regarded the opinion of her friends with great respect. Her attachment to the church of her parents and of her own choice as well—the Presbyterian—seemed to exceed all others, which characteristic was attested by the remarks of her pastor, Rev. Joseph Stevens, at her funeral, who held her forth as a bright example to Christians everywhere, in her regular and constant attendance upon all the services—seldom, if ever, absenting herself without good and sufficient reasons. She always manifested a deep and abiding interest in the welfare of her son's family with which she continued to reside, and upon these—parents and children—the stroke has fallen heavily.

She was perfectly conscious to the last and previous to her departure expressed an entire willingness to meet her Saviour, whom she had endeavored to serve, and hence our loss is her eternal gain.

Her remains were removed to the place of her abode, from whence they were taken to the beautiful cemetery and deposited by the side of her husband on a Sabbath afternoon, there to await a glorious resurrection. During the services preceding a heavy storm arose accompanied by terrific peals of thunder and flashes of lightning, after which the sun appeared in all its brightness.

In view of her happy and comfortable death who would not be a Christian?

Will not her early associates profit by the lesson and imitate her example?

—The sermon delivered by Rev. George Penepacker Sunday morning was considered an admirable effort by those who had the pleasure of hearing it.

That Great Land Case.

The following statement from the Altoona Tribune of last Friday concerning the land case now before the Board of Property is the most explicit which has yet come to our notice:

The board of property, consisting of Attorney General Cassidy, Secretary of the Commonwealth Stenger, and Secretary of Internal Affairs Africa, have had before them an interesting case, involving the ownership of about 800 acres of valuable land in Centre county.

On April 22, 1882, John H. Holt, of Snow Shoe, Centre county, applied to the secretary of internal affairs for a warrant for 400 acres of land in Snow Shoe township, which he claims was vacant, or had never been in legal possession of anybody. On May 8, 1882, the Snow Shoe coal and improvement company filed a caveat protesting against the issuing of the warrant to Holt, on the ground that the land is not vacant, but was long ago appropriated by warrants now held by the company which came into their possession by purchase. To make the case more complicated one J. J. Lingle, of Bellefonte, in June, 1883, came forward and also entered a caveat and objected to the warrant issuing on the ground that the land in question was already appropriated by a warrant granted April 15, 1794, to Joseph Dalton, the title to which is now held by him (Lingle).

The land in dispute is valuable, because of its fine timber growth and rich coal deposits. It has increased in value since the route for the new Vanderbilt railroad from the bituminous coal regions runs directly through it, and will materially assist in its development.

—In the News of July 26 it was announced that "The Edison Electric Illuminating Co., of Bellefonte," was chartered by the Commonwealth. Capital, $5,000. We are now informed that a charter has been issued to "The Bellefonte Electric Lighting and Steam Heating Company." The latter company is composed of Bellefonte's youngest and most enterprising business men, who give promise of running a sharp tilt with the Bellefonte Gas Co. in the matter of economy of light furnished to the people. We wish both parties success and shall stand off at a safe distance from their dynamo machines, and after a month's examination of the Edison system and that of the other company we shall decide between them then and say, "Hurrah, boys, go in, give us lots of light and we'll adopt the cheapest." The capital of the Bellefonte Electric Lighting and Steam Heating Company is $10,000.

—The Methodist picnic on Thursday was an enjoyable affair, the day being fine and the attendance large A very brief game of base ball took place between Mr. Lieb's class and the class of Mr. Washington Rees. At the termination of the second inning all the bats on hand had been broken in consequence of the powerful batting of Washington Rees and another player and the game was closed with a score of 6 to 4 in favor of Rees' juvenile nine. Lieb's giant nine partially retrieved their fallen fortunes, however, in a game of foot ball which followed. One small boy fell in the creek, but managed to get on shore again. There were no other casualties, all the exercises of the day being exceedingly pleasant. The picnicers returned at 6 o'clock, weary but much pleased.

Interesting to Bellefonters.

The Altoona Tribune of last Friday morning said:

In answer to an inquiry from Bellefonte we are authorized to say that the New York league club will play in this city on August 6. Ward, pitcher of the New York team, and Brown, pitcher of the Altoona, are old friends and schoolmates, and both played together in Lock Haven.

The above information is of peculiar interest in Bellefonte from the fact that Mr. Monte Ward, pitcher for the New York League club, is a Bellefonte boy, and several of our citizens have expressed a determination to go to Altoona to witness his playing when the game occurs. Among those who will go are Chief Burgess Fleming and Mr. Washington Rees.

A Freight Wreck.

A broken axle caused ten cars of the Lock Haven local freight train, Mr. James Waddle, conductor, to leave the track at Curtin Friday afternoon. They piled themselves upon one another along the track preventing the passage of the 5:05 p. m. mail west, which did not arrive in Bellefonte until 12.10 o'clock next morning. The passengers took their supper at Howard, and as may be imagined, were impatient at the delay of seven hours which the accident occasioned. The 8.55 express east was also delayed over three hours. The most fortunate item to record about the wreck is that no one was injured.

Mr. J. R. Bingaman and lady, of Altoona, spent Sunday with the Misses Benner of this place, returning to their home on the 5:40 train Monday morning. Mrs. Bingaman was formerly Miss Haddie Wollerton, of West Chester, who, with her sister, it will be remembered, spent several weeks of last summer with the Misses Benner, and formed the acquaintance of many Bellefonte people. She has since been married to Mr. Bingaman, who is a Pennsylvania R. R. official. She is much esteemed by all who know her who extend their best wishes to the happy bride and groom.

While in the Quaker City recently we had the pleasure of renewing our acquaintance with Mr. George W. Bible, brother of Mrs. Hutton, proprietress of the Columbia House, and uncle to Mr. Frank Bible, of this place. Mr. Bible is a journalist by profession, and has contributed a number of able articles on the tariff question and other subjects of a like nature to leading publications in New York and Philadelphia. He makes the Columbia his headquarters while in the city, and, like a true knight of the quill, has a smile and a pleasant word for all with whom he comes in contact. Mr. Robinson, chief clerk of the Columbia, we also had the pleasure of meeting, and found him a very obliging and courteous gentleman, to whom we are indebted for many favors received.
